

Kühne Foundation's Global Education Manager, Dr. Daniel Zapata, visits Department of Agricultural Economics on 9th November, 2022

Kühne Foundation has been collaborating with the University of Nairobi in capacity development on logistics and supply chain management. Through the collaboration, the Foundation partnered in the establishment of the DAAD funded, Africa Centre of Excellence on Sustainable Operations for Resource Management and Food Supply (SCO) and setting up of Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degree programs in Business (specialization in logistics and operations management), Business Research and Sustainable Management and Operations.

As part of these ongoing collaborations, Dr. Daniel Zapata visited Department of Agricultural Economics where he paid a courtesy call to the Dean, Faculty of Agriculture and Chairman, Department of Agricultural Economics. He also met with faculty members teaching logistics and supply chain management related courses as well as students undertaking BSc. Agribusiness. During his visit, he elaborated on the importance of continuously engaging students to get their feedback on course delivery, placement and employment opportunities. He noted that such feedback is crucial in improving course curriculum making the courses student and industry relevant.

He highlighted opportunities under the Logistics Education-LEED program including scholarships and internships to students. He encouraged faculty members and students to create awareness about such opportunities as they enable students to have a global industry orientation. To participate, current and previous students who undertook courses in Agribusiness or logistics and supply chain management related courses are eligible to apply. Those who fully complete the survey will automatically participate on a draw. The first prize will be a fully-covered participation in Kühne Foundation International Summer School in Hamburg (Germany). The second prize is USD200, cash (via Western Union). The winners will be announced via email on the 2nd of February 2023.
