

Visit by Zoe Wallace

The acting Chair of the Department of Agricultural Economics, Prof. David Jakinda, recently welcomed Zoe Wallace, an MSc student from University of Hohenheim in Germany. During the visit, the Chair highlighted the department's ongoing commitment to fostering collaboration with international universities to enhance capacity building and research initiatives. Zoe's primary objective during her visit was to establish connections with local agricultural organizations as part of her research on the effects of the Russia-Ukraine war on food security in the region. Once she collects and analyzes the necessary data, Zoe plans to share her findings with the department, contributing valuable insights to advance research in this field.
